<Reason for revision>

The economic outlook for both SPE and Metrology segments assumes a continuing recovery not only in overseas countries where demand remains firm, but also in the domestic market's stance towards capital investment, therefore, the Company and consolidated affiliates anticipate an increase in Sales and Profits in FY2012 interim as revised below, from its projections previously announced on May 11th, 2011.

Projections for the FY2012 full year have not yet been revised mainly because there remains significant uncertainties such as continuing concerns about the negative affect of the 2011 earthquake off the Pacific coast of Tohoku in Japan, slow-down in the world economy due to concerns in the EU and USA lead by employment levels and sovereign budget measures, and also monetary restraint in China which are of significant concern as of the time of issue of this document.
